Within its 221 Pages and 15 Charts, This Report Presents All the Key Facts and Draws Conclusions, so you can understand what is Shaping the Future of the Access Control Industry:

The access control market contracted in 2020 due to the global pandemic, dropping to $10.85 billion. However, it rebounded strongly with over 10% growth in both 2021 and 2022, reaching an estimated $13.3 billion in 2022. Growth is projected to continue through 2028 but at more moderate annual rates between 5-7%.

A major driver of access control adoption is ongoing technology advancements enabling more convenient and integrated solutions. Key examples include the rise of mobile access control, biometrics, IoT integration, and frictionless/touchless access control. Regulations related to building security and data protection are also catalyzing investments and system upgrades.

Access control is evolving through convergence with progressive technologies. While obstacles exist, the benefits appear compelling, pointing toward gradual but increasing adoption across enterprises. The future landscape will likely involve a hybrid model blending physical and digital systems. Those able to provide holistic solutions with strong open platform support and flexible integration will be best positioned to capitalize on these industry shifts.

At only USD $3,000 for an enterprise license, this report provides valuable information into how physical security companies can develop their business strategy through mergers, acquisitions, and alliances.

In the last 12 months, the sector has seen over $731M in M&A across notable deals like SGT Capital acquiring Elatec RFID Systems for $422M and Assa Abloy acquiring Evolis for $237M. The activity signals a focus on integration, cloud-based solutions, and advanced software capabilities.

Divestments by Carrier and Bosch could significantly reshape the competitive landscape depending on how their security businesses are divested. This aligns with a trend of conglomerates streamlining to focus more on core offerings.
